

HPPL expands agricultural team with appointment of Adam Giles as General Manager External Affairs for Pastoral

Hancock Prospecting Pty Ltd (HPPL) is pleased to announce the appointment of Adam Giles, former Chief Minister of the Northern Territory to its team as the new General Manager External Affairs for Pastoral.

"The Hancock Pastoral business has grown substantially over the last few years and more recently with significant acquisitions including the iconic S Kidman & Co. Our continued involvement in the Australian beef industry and our north is an important focus for the future of the Hancock Prospecting Group. Adam joins us at an exciting time at HPPL, and we welcome him to our team." said HPPL Executive Chairman, Gina Rinehart.

"I have known and regarded Adam highly since prior to his time as Chief Minister and look forward to the contribution he can make to our company, and, continue to make for northern Australia."

Mr. Giles will spend three quarters of his time focused on his responsibilities at Hancock.

"This is a great opportunity to contribute to Hancock – a business that is continuing to focus in Australia and creates and sustains Australian jobs. I have always held Mrs. Gina Rinehart in the highest regard and look forward to working with her in supporting her dynamic pastoral interests that are set to make a significant contribution to the development of Northern Australia, something I share Mrs. Rinehart's passion for." said Mr. Giles.

- ENDS -

Media Contacts: Sophie Mirabella, GM Media and Government Relations, Hancock Prospecting Pty Ltd

0439 030 608 or sophie_mirabella@hancockprospecting.com.au